This survey of state immigration laws provides an overview of recent legislation. Because so many states are enacting immigration-related legislation affecting employers, it is becoming increasingly important for employers to know what legislation applies in the states they do business. This is especially true for employers who operate in multiple states. While we make every attempt to cover each enacted piece of legislation, this list is only a guide and you should speak with an attorney before making any decisions based upon this list. Some counties or municipalities may also have enacted immigration-related legislation that will not be included on this list.

If you have any questions about this state law survey or any other immigration-related matter, please contact an attorney in our Global Immigration Practice Group at (404) 240-4224 or via email at immigration@laborlawyers.com.

SURVEY OF STATE IMMIGRATION LAWS

Arizona

HB 2779 – Fair and Legal Employment Act

Effective date: January 1, 2008

Requires all businesses in the state to use E-Verify to verify the employment eligibility of newly hired employees. A business found to be employing undocumented immigrants would benefit from a rebuttable presumption that it did not violate another provision in the state law prohibiting intentionally or knowingly employing undocumented workers if the business was enrolled in E-Verify at the time of the alleged violation. The law stipulates that any company knowingly or intentionally hiring an illegal alien could face suspension of its business license for a first offense, and revocation of the license for a subsequent offense. The law has faced several legal challenges. On September 17, 2008, the U.S. Court of Appeals for the Ninth Circuit affirmed a ruling by the U.S. District Court for Arizona upholding the Act. Later, on March 19, 2009, the same Court of Appeals refused to hear a second challenge to the law filed by various business and pro-immigration plaintiffs.

Arkansas

HB 1024 (Act 157)

Effective date: August 1, 2007

This law prohibits Arkansas state agencies from entering into contracts with businesses that knowingly employ or contract with illegal immigrants. Contractors are required to certify that they do not, at the time of certification, employ or contract with undocumented workers. If a contractor uses subcontractors, the subcontractors must also certify that they do not employ any unauthorized workers. Contractors who are found to have employed unauthorized workers may be found in breach of the contract and may be liable to the state for any actual damages incurred. The certification requirement applies to all contractors seeking to enter into a contract with a state agency for professional services, technical and general services, or construction where the value of the contract is $25,000 or more.

Colorado

HB 06-1343 (C.R.S. 8-17.5-101 et seq.)

Effective date: August 7, 2006

Applies to contractors who provide services to state agencies and political subdivisions of the state, broadly defined to include most state and local governments, districts, and other public entities. Public contracts for services must include provisions which: (1) prohibit the contractor from knowingly employing or contracting with illegal aliens, or using subcontractors who do so; (2) require the contractor to participate in the federal "E-Verify Program" to verify that it does not employ illegal aliens; and (3) require the contractor to take specified actions if it learns that a subcontractor is employing illegal aliens. Violation of these provisions will constitute a breach of contract, allowing the public entity to terminate the contract and recover damages. The Secretary of State will maintain a list of all terminated contractors. The Department of Labor and Employment is authorized to investigate compliance and its web site provides a complaint form for reporting violations.

HB 06S-1001, (C.R.S. 24-46-105.3)

Effective date: October 1, 2006

Provides that in order to be eligible for state economic development incentives, an employer must provide proof that it is in compliance with IRCA. Under this law, employers who do not comply with IRCA may be required to repay economic development incentives received from the state and may be disqualified for five years from receiving any further incentives. Employers receiving economic development funds from the state must also allow the state to inspect the employers' I-9 documentation.

HB 06S-1017, (C.R.S. 8-2-122)

Effective date: January 1, 2007

Requires each employer in Colorado to attest that the employer has verified the legal work status of each employee and retained file copies of the appropriate federally-required documentation, that the employer has not altered or falsified the employee's identification documents, and that the employer has not knowingly hired an unauthorized alien. Each Colorado employer must also submit documentation, upon request, to the Colorado Labor and Employment Department demonstrating compliance with federal employment verification requirements. The law authorizes the state labor agency to conduct random audits of employers to ensure compliance with federal law, and subjects an employer to a fine of up to $5,000 for the first offense and up to $25,000 for the second or subsequent offense. The act applies only to employees hired on or after January 1, 2007.

HB 06S-1015, (C.R.S. 39-22-604)

Effective date: January 1, 2008

Requires the office of innovation and technology to create an online employment authorization verification system. The statute further requires employers to withhold state income tax at the rate of 4.63% for certain employees who do not provide the employer with a validated tax identification number issued to a U.S. resident.

HB 06S-1020 (approved as "Referendum H")

Effective date: January 1, 2008

Prohibits employers from claiming a state income tax deduction for wages or remuneration of $600 or more paid to an individual who was known at time of hire to be an unauthorized alien, regardless of whether the individual is an employee or independent contractor, if the payment is for services performed in Colorado. The law includes several exceptions, including payments to individuals hired before the effective date of the law, payments to individuals who present to the employer a valid license or identification card issued by the Department of Revenue, and payments that are not made directly to the unauthorized individual. issued to a U.S. resident.

The Georgia Labor Commissioner and the Department of Transportation shall promulgate rules to effectuate this Code Section including, implementing a state work authorization program.

SB 184

Effective date: January 1, 2008

This law prohibits employers from claiming a state income tax deduction for wages or remuneration of $600 or more paid to an individual who is not authorized to work. The employer's reliance on E-Verify provides a safe harbor, as does the employee's presentation to the employer of a valid license or identification card issued by the Georgia Department of Driver Services. The law only applies with regard to employees hired after January 1, 2008.

Hawaii

HB1750 - Act 052

Illinois

The United States of America vs. the State of Illinois

Effective date: March 11, 2009

On March 11, 2009, a federal district court judge ruled as unconstitutional an Illinois state law that had prohibited the use of E-Verify within the state. The case, entitled The United States of America vs. the State of Illinois, was originally filed on September 24, 2007. Brought by the Justice Department on behalf of the Department of Homeland Security, the civil suit was intended to preempt an Illinois state law that barred businesses from using E-Verify until the system was proven to be faster and more accurate. While the litigation was pending, the State of Illinois said it would not enforce the act. Because of the decision in this case, there are no longer any state law restrictions on Illinois employers voluntarily using the E-Verify system.

Iowa

SF 562

Effective date: July 1, 2007

Any business that receives economic development assistance from the state of Iowa must be subject to contract provisions stating that all of the business's employees are citizens of the United States who reside within the U.S. or are authorized to work in the U.S. pursuant to federal law, including legal residents in the U.S. states. Any business that receives public moneys must adhere to such a contract provisions and provide periodic assurances, as the state requests, that the jobs are filled solely by individuals authorized to work in the U.S.

SB 2988

Effective date: July 1, 2008 (signed March 17, 2008)

The Mississippi Employment Protection Act mandates phased-in use of E-Verify, and provides for stiff penalties for non-compliance. The Act requires all state agencies, public contractors and subcontractors, and all private employers with 250 or more employees, to begin using E-Verify to check the status of new hires as of July 1, 2008. Private employers with 100-249 employees must begin using E-Verify to check the status of new hires as of July 1, 2009 and those with 30 to 99 have until July 1, 2010. All remaining employers must begin using E-Verify by July 1, 2011.

Penalties for non-compliance include the cancellation of any state or public contracts, and ineligibility for any state or public contract for up to 3 years. Furthermore, the employer may have its business license revoked for up to 1 year. Use of E-Verify provides a safe harbor, however, from non-willful violations of the Act. Also under the law, workers who accept unauthorized employment face a felony conviction, 1 to 5 years incarceration, and a fine of $1,000 to $10,000.

The law includes a provision making it a discriminatory practice for an employer to terminate a work-authorized employee while retaining a non-work authorized employee, if the two employees have substantially similar job duties. An employer is indemnified under this provision; however, if it is properly using the E-Verify system.

Provides that no business shall knowingly employ any individual who is not authorized to work in Missouri. Also mandates that for any public contract or grant in excess of $5,000 (including subsidized tax credits and loans), an employer must submit annually a sworn affidavit confirming its use of E-Verify for all employees working in connection with the contracted services. The affidavit must also confirm that the employer does not knowingly employ any person who is an unauthorized alien in connection with work done on a public contract.

HR 1549

Effective date: July 08, 2008

Employment-related provisions take effect January 1, 2009. This law requires all state agencies and local governments to register and use E-Verify. Private companies who receive state loans, tax credits or have a state contract worth more than $5,000 must also register and use E-Verify. Companies found to have hired undocumented workers are subject to suspension of business permits/licenses. Penalty for repeat violations of hiring undocumented workers is one-year suspension of business license, followed by permanent revocation for repeat offense. Businesses with state contracts are subject to cancellation of those contracts if found to be in violation of this law, including eventually a permanent bar from contracting with the state.

Mo. Rev. Stat. 8.283

Effective date: August 28, 2007

If a state agency has reasonable evidence that a contractor doing “work” for the state is employing unauthorized workers, the state agency must order that contractor to terminate the suspected illegal workers. The agency may also withhold payment of 20% of the contract’s value where the contractor has employed unauthorized workers. This amount can be doubled where the contractor is shown to have hired a subcontractor which the contractor knew was using illegal labor. A contractor found in violation of this statute is prohibited from entering into state contracts for two years.

Executive Order 07-13

Effective date: March 07, 2007

Reiterates a September 2006 executive order that mandated state agencies to verify the work authorization of all new hires through the federal government’s electronic verification system. The order also requires that each state agency audit all contractors with which it does business to ensure that those contractors employ only legal workers; if illegal workers are discovered, the agency is empowered to end any contract with the offending contractor. All future contracts will be required to empower state agencies to cancel contracts without penalty if a contractor is discovered to be using illegal labor. Furthermore, contractors must affirm that all employees are eligible to work in the United States.

The law includes a provision making it a discriminatory practice for an employer to terminate a work-authorized employee while retaining a non-work authorized employee, if the two employees had substantially similar job duties. An employer is indemnified under this provision, however, if it is properly using the E-Verify system. In June 2008, the U.S. District Court for the Western District of Oklahoma granted a preliminary injunction postponing enforcement of the employment-related provisions of the Act. Pennsylvania

HB 2319 - The Prohibition of Illegal Alien Labor on Assisted Project Act

Effective date: July 1, 2006 (signed May 11, 2006)

The bill defines an illegal alien as one who violates federal immigration laws yet is a paid employee within the state. This bill prohibits the use of labor by illegal immigrants on projects financed by grants or loans from the state government. If the taxpayer is required to repay the tax benefit under this section, the taxpayer will be ineligible to reapply for the benefit for two years. Under the law, a certificate of compliance from the contractor that it is in compliance with the regulations of Section 274A of the Immigration Reform and Control Act of 1986 ("IRCA") will be an affirmative defense to a violation.

South Carolina

South Carolina Illegal Immigration Reform Act

Effective date: January 1, 2009 (signed June 4, 2008)

This bill creates an implied business license for any private employer in the state. This license is revoked if the employer does not properly verify that a newly hired employee has valid work authorization. Employers can do so by completing a Form I-9 and either: (1) verifying the employee's information through the federal E-Verify system; or (2) checking that the employee has a valid South Carolina driver's license or identification card issued by the SC Department of Motor Vehicles, is eligible to obtain a SC driver's license or ID card, or possesses a driver's license or ID card from another state that meets SC's eligibility requirements. Verification under this law must be completed within five business days of the employee starting work. Employers who elect the E-Verify option (rather than the drivers license or identification card option) are presumed to be in compliance with the law. Employers with state service contracts must begin compliance as of January 1, 2009. Private employers with 100+ employees must begin compliance by July 1, 2009 and private employers with less than 100 employees must begin compliance no later than July 1, 2010.

The Act expressly states that a private employer shall not "knowingly or intentionally" employ an unauthorized alien, and imposes a system of penalties for employers who violate either the verification of employment provisions or the prohibition on hiring an unauthorized alien. A private employer can be assessed a civil penalty of not less than $100 and not more than $1,000 for each violation. For a first violation, employers can avoid the assessment of a penalty by complying with the verification provisions within 72 hours of notification of a violation. For any subsequent violation, the employer will be assessed a civil penalty.

If an employer knowingly or intentionally hires an unauthorized alien, the penalties involve either suspension or revocation of the employer's imputed license, thereby preventing the employer from hiring new employees or conducting business within the state of South Carolina. Additionally, in order to obtain reinstatement of the employer's license, the employer must terminate the unauthorized alien, and pay a reinstatement fee of not more than $1,000. Subsequent violations of this portion of the Act can result in revocation of an employer's license for a period of five years.

Provides for fines up to $50,000. Farmers are exempt from the new rule. They are not required to have business licenses. A suspension would be lifted once the company proves it no longer has any illegal immigrants as employees. Subsequent offenses occurring within three years would mandate license suspensions for one year. Employers who check identification and are misled by an illegal immigrant will not be considered to be in violation and would not be prosecuted.
